

Course: Databases

ER Diagram

Page 1

Main relationships

- One airline can have many flights.
- One airport can be used by many flights for departure or arrival.
- One passenger can have many bookings.
- One flight can have many bookings.
- A booking is connected to a boarding pass and baggage.
- Baggage can have baggage check records.
- A passenger can have security check records.
- Booking changes are stored separately and linked to the booking.

Conclusion

The ER diagram shows the structure of the airport database and the connections between its main entities. Primary and foreign keys are used to keep the data connected and consistent.